

WHITE HOUSE COW ARRIVES.

Pauline Wayne, 3d, Comes Safely from Wisconsin—A Calf Expected.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Pauline Wayne, 3d, the much-talked-of new White House cow, has at last reached Washington and taken up her domestic duties as provider of milk and butter for President Taft's household. Pauline is a Holstein-Frisian cow of registered stock, her number in the bovine blue book being 115,580. She came from the stock farm of Senator Isaac Stephenson of Wisconsin, and was on the road from Kenosha just two days. Pauline arrived in a big crate, none the worse for her long journey in an express car. She was met at the Union Station by a delegation of White House employes and escorted to the stables in the rear of the Executive Mansion. Later in the day Pauline was turned out to grass on the rear lawns of the White House.

Pauline's aunt, Gertrude Wayne, is said to have held the world's record for milk and butter production. Pauline at present yields 7½ gallons of milk a day.

The stork is expected to visit Pauline soon, and President Taft to-day promised to give the distinguished offspring to the dean of the White House corps of newspaper correspondents, W. W. Price of this city.

The New York Times

Published: November 4, 1910

Copyright © The New York Times